About the course:

Nowadays communication, teamwork, cooperation, conflict management, also called soft skills are very important for any professional in all fields. Experience shows that very often students lack those interdisciplinary skills. Only rarely there are specific courses tackling those topics and skills and also there is a lack of training materials which academics can use in the study process in order to train those skills of students.

This course will help students to explore subject of soft skills, to train and develop such skills as working in a team, time management, setting the goals, multicultural communication and conflict management.
